The screenshot shows a web browser window displaying a text recreation exercise. The page title is "THE PRINCIPLES OF ECONOMICS WITH APPLICATIONS TO PRACTICAL PROBLEMS BY FRANK A. FETTER - 1904 / 1" and the subtitle is "TEXT RECREATION EXERCISE (WEB RHUBARB)". The exercise is by Michael Riccioli (2014) and thanks Dr Stan Bogdanov and Thomas Riccioli. The instructions are: "A) Try to recreate the text by typing words (A, THE, THAT, WHICH, AS, AND OR, ON, IN, you, he, they, even, VERBS ...ETC...) into the box. If a word is in the text, it will be added. 'The text will gradually appear as you type correct guesses' B) DICTATION Exercise: You will hear a recording and type in the text and then click on 'CHECK' to enter the word or phrase". The interface includes a "Listening:" section with "Start" and "Stop" buttons, a "Guess" input field, "Check" and "Hint" buttons, "Solution" and "Restart" buttons, and a "Your score is:" label. A large text box for input is filled with asterisks. Four red callout boxes with blue arrows point to specific elements: 1. Points to the "Start" button. 2. Points to the "Guess" input field. 3. Points to the "Check" button. 4. Points to the "Your score is:" label.

The screenshot shows a web-based word-guessing game interface. On the left, there is a control panel with a yellow 'Listening:' button containing 'Start' and 'Stop' icons, a 'Guess' input field, and buttons for 'Check', 'Hint', 'Solution', and 'Restart'. Below these are the scores 'Your score is: 0/155' and 'Incorrect words: here'. On the right, a text box contains the word 'Economics' followed by a grid of asterisks representing a hidden text. Three red circles with numbers 1, 2, and 3 are placed below the text box. Blue arrows point from circle 1 to the 'Check' button, from circle 2 to the 'Economics' text, and from circle 3 to the 'Incorrect words: here' text. A '<=' button is visible in the bottom right corner of the interface.
